

FRANK D'RONE: DOUBLE EXPOSURE

DOUBLE EXPOSURE, on Whaling City Sound, is available from Amazon.com and wherever great music is sold.

Frank D'Rone is that rare musical talent who can connect with audiences at every turn. From the highest of highs to life's unavoidable lows, Chicago based Frank D'Rone conveys the wisdom of a man who's been there.

Double Exposure captures both sides of this much heralded musical treasure. This is Frank D'Rone with a swinging big band, lead by Phil Kelly...and alternately with just his guitar.

As a vocalist, and as a top-notch guitarist, Frank continues to wow long time fans and attract new admirers.

Speaking of fans and admirers...

"He has never sung a bad song and when you listen to D'Rone you're listening to the real thing." - Tony Bennett.

"There's nothing I can praise about D'Rone's singing and playing that doesn't, in some way, sell him short. This CD is a masterful display of his capabilities, and more."

- Tommy LiPuma, Renowned Producer

"One of the few singers who can change the mood of a room from song to song by moving from one emotion to another naturally. He holds an audience." - Nat King Cole

"One of the many things I've always looked forward to when playing (in Chicago) is inviting Frank on-stage to sing a few songs. The guy's amazing!"

- Oscar Peterson, interviewed by WGN Radio's Mike Rapchak, October 20, 1991
