About Eddie Berner and Rockin' Road Grill:

Eddie Berner is both a top-flight musician and accomplished chef who melds his passion for music and food with his glitzy, refurbished 38-foot Monarch Diplomat RV called the Rockin' Road Grill.

Eddie received his first guitar when he was 9, took one lesson to learn the basic 3 chords, and he's improvised ever since. He joined his first rock and roll band at age 13. In college he jammed weekly at Philadelphia's JC Dobbs nightclub, where he performed for the likes of Robert Hazard and The Hooters. During this time, he also worked as a professional chef at a local Italian restaurant.

Eddie met Mike Score, lead singer of the smash hit group A Flock of Seagulls in 1987 and officially joined the group as lead guitarist the next year. They recorded and toured together until 1999. Following the breakup of the band, Eddie rededicated himself to gourmet food and has since worked as a chef in Las Vegas, Orlando, Los Angeles, Palm Springs and Atlantic City while continuing to perform.
